“All of my life you have been a kind and generous uncle and an inspirational model for my core values. When your large box of Christmas gifts arrived each year, all of my siblings and I, knew that you had taken the time to care about us. I still have the dictionary you sent when I entered college. You gave David and me our first coffee pot as a wedding gift. When your duties as a principal or superintendent were finished for the school year, you would drive to Wisconsin with inscribed plates, "Big Sky Country". How exciting it was to hear about your travels, here and abroad. Your stories inspired David, Ryan, Erin and me to be travelers. Throughout my life we have corresponded and shared ideas. I want to thank you for teaching me these axioms of life. 1 Care about people and treat them with dignity and respect. Thank you for your kindness. In 2004 you endured a bus ride from Bismark to Madison to pay your respects to my brother Bob. 2 Work for world peace. Encourage diplomacy in the many troubled spots of the globe. 3 For heaven's sake, secure those nuclear weapons. 4 Be a faithfull progressive. 5 Endure the misery of your ailments. 6 Remember the good people. How often you told me the ways that Aunt Helen helped you. Thank You Uncle George, Love, Jean
